Just For The Fun Of It

Thinking back on those good ol' school days, many can admit to starting to school with a push and a shove. However, as time passed by, we began to kick back and enjoy ourselves — not necessarily because we were thrilled with having facts crammed into our tiny brains, sitting at a desk for six hours, or dragging a bag stuffed full of books back home; but rather, the reason we returned to school the following days, weeks, and years (aside from the eminent federal law and threats from our parents) was because of the fun things that go on there. You know what these things are - the faces made behind teachers' backs, the coy looks exchanged in the halls, the papers passed from chair to chair whenever a teacher wasn't looking, and of course along with all those books in that bookbag, notes about who saw Johnny making eyes at Sally. These are just a few of the things that endear the prison-like building to our hearts, and it is to these things that we dedicate our yearbook theme. This 1986-87 Byng Pirate Yearbook pays special tribute to all the things we do . . .

Are We

"It's one of THOSE days." Sometimes, no matter how hard you may try, nothing seems to go right. It's then that you need to quit trying so hard — kick back and have fun!

Your alarm goes off at 7:00 a.m. Without even opening your eyes, you lift one arm to hit the snooze button and roll over. At 7:09 your alarm goes off again. You roll over, hit snooze and doze off once again. You repeat this procedure every nine minutes until you open one eye to see that it's 7:27. You sit straight up in bed in an effort to wake up, you think again, you hit snooze, you fall back against your pillow and snuggle deeper under the covers.

Having Fun Yet?

You arrive at your eight o'clock class at 8:07 with your hair sticking straight up and creases in one side of your face. It's definitely one of THOSE days!

The day progresses progessively worse, and several times you scowl as you remember the title page of this yearbook which says we go to school just for the fun of it. With this thought in mind, you sarcastically mumble to yourself, "Are we having fun yet?" Of course your answer to this question is no, but for all of us who have seen you today, it is definitely a yes! So take a look in the mirror, kick back, and have fun!!

Top middle- "Why didn't I just stay in bed today?" Mrs. Willis, yearbook adv.
Bottom middle- "I'm so-o-o good!" James Stacy, Sr.
Top right- "I sleep better standing," Gregg Hardin, Jr.

Feeling!

Most things can be recorded in a yearbook — things that take place every year. However, there are some things, the feelings, that are difficult to capture. These feelings — a feeling of pride in your school, an extremely funny moment, a sense of accomplishment or defeat — are very strong emotions usually lost in the hub-bub of other school activities recorded in the yearbook. Yet many fail to realize that it is precisely these emotions that determine who you are and what you expect from life and describe your entire school career without words.

Feelings — how simple, yet piercing they can be. Remember that overwhelming sense of jubilation after winning state? You could hardly contain the excitement or suppress the tears which released all of the long months of hard work. Or when losing that crucial game, remember the sense of loss and heartache felt when seeing tears of frustration and defeat falling from our players' faces.

On a more pleasant note, remember the swell of pride when you received that unexpected A in Biology? How about those late nights at a friend's house when everything seems funny and no one can go to sleep for laughing. Don't forget the feeling when you had just gotten a date with that special person, and you just wanted to shout with excitement.

Remember these feelings, the strong emotions, the memories they created. Remember the good times, the bad times. Remember school.

Yeah ! That's

Passing a tall, distinguished, wealthy looking man on the sidewalk, a young school girl prepares to confront him. After all, he's wealthy-looking; it is very unusual for a person on Byng campus to have money the first semester of school. The months from August to December have been newly designated as the fund-raising months at Byng. Running after the man, the young girl digs several slips of paper out of her school bag. "Ex-Excuse me, sir," the young girl stammers as the stranger turns around. "Would you like to buy a raffle ticket for a 4 foot high stuffed animal?" The man smiles and hands over a dollar bill. Taking the ticket from the girl he nods and begins walking away. "Wait!" the girl yells after him, "How about a ticket for a carwash?" The man turns around, smiles politely, and hands the girl two more bills in exchange for another ticket. "And how about a ticket for a flowervase for your wife?" the girl prompts as the man digs in his pocket again. "And a top quality stereo . . ." This continues until the annoyed man pulls his empty pocket wrong-side out and turns to walk away. "I can give you time to go to the bank!" the girl yells to the retreating form who is now like everyone else on Byng campus.

This is a common episode which anyone at Byng during the first semester can relate to. Tickets are sold for the raffling of everything from turkeys to TV's. Food is sold, magazines are sold; shirts are sold; knick-knacks are sold; pins are sold; cards are sold . . . You name it; Pirates sell it. Carwashes, bowl-a-thons, dances, a chili supper, a skate-a-thon are all held annually for fund-raising events.

Nearly every organized group at Byng School raises money for its activities, and there are quite a few organizations. It would fill a whole page to list all the groups who raise money, but the Mr. & Miss BHS contest would definitely be at the top.

This year's BHS candidates together raised a total of $5,822.04. Seventh graders, Ryan Feazle and Mendy Morgan, raised $153.05; Brandon Parks and Shannon Smith, eighth graders, raised $820.04; ninth grade candidates, Deryck Parks and Jennifer Timmons, raised a total of $1216.17; Scotty Gannon and Sherri Mitchell of tenth grade raised $1411.50; Juniors, Elizabeth Willis and Geoffrey Humphers brought $1602.50; and last, Seniors Denise Erwin and Robby Lee raised $618.78. However, winners or losers, this contest takes place all in fun, right? Right? "Yeah, yeeaahh, that's the ticket!"

Double Your Pleasure,

"Being a twin is definitely a different experience!" declares sophomore, LaVerne Wasson. This difference contradicts the likeness of twins, but LaVerne claims that other than looks, she and her twin, LaVonne, are totally different. This statement is agreed to by nearly all the twins at Byng School. However, there are many similarities.

For instance, Mitch and Peggy Henley are both sport fanatics; Leland and Ginger Wilson are both aggies, as are Steven and Stanley Sawyers; and Sada and Stephanie Enyeart are both talented musicians.

Double Your Fun!!

Another similarity between all of the twins is that they are all in the 10th and 11th grades. It is very unusual to have 9 sets of twins at Byng School, all within one year apart in age difference. One can imagine that all these twins wreak havoc for their teachers. "It's fun being a twin," LaVerne says. "Like when we drive people crazy by getting in cars right behind each other on Main Street!" Being a twin — it doubles your pleasure, it doubles your fun!

For A Fun Time Call . . .

'Being alone', in the eyes of a teenager, is probably one of the worst things that could happen to anyone! 'Loneliness' . . . it's just plain boring! In other words, it's an unpleasurable monotony. So therefore, you will very seldom catch any 'sane' teenager letting this type of monotonous unpleasure happen!

"How do they do this", you ask? It's simple, all you have to do is pick up the telephone, get together, and have a crazy time!

Hmmm! Have you ever wondered just exactly how rich the youth of America are making the people at Southwestern Bell? We must keep them busy! At our school alone, there are 810 students in the 7 through 12 grades. Each of which talks on the phone about an average of two hours a day a piece, some of them even more.

So this means, that at any given time, there are at least 42 people on the phone lines at one time. That's just from our school, think about how many teenages are on the phone at the same time in Oklahoma!

All seriousness aside, though, there is something good coming out of all this! 'Friendships' . . . special relationships that a young person will remember for a lifetime!

High school days are the best times of a person's life. Times of cruisin', parties, sleepovers, or just plain hangin' out! But you don't do these things by yourself, you do them with 'friends'!

You can laugh with friends, you can cry with them. You can listen to their problems and they can listen to yours.

So the next time you get bored, just call up a friend and create some memories that will last a lifetime!

Ahh! Those three blissful months of summer - time spent soaking in the sun, splashing in the water, lying in front of the T.V. in the middle of the afternoon, spending endless hours with your friends with no worrying of having to get up and go to school the next morning, no homework to pretend like you are doing, shades, cars, loud stereos, and skimpy clothing. What more can you say? That's the life! That's summer!

In The Sun

Top right- Senior Roy Horton took time out during the annual wheat harvest to carve his name in a rock near Cluster, Montana.

Just For The

Have you ever reached the point of boredom at which you would do absolutely ANYTHING to have fun? The students whose testimonies follow undoubtedly reached that point. However, please bear in mind that they are TEENAGERS.

Robby Lee, Senior

" When I was a junior, and after Mrs. Tipton had just had the stage painted following the South Pacific performances, Ted Gonderman was chasing me around the auditorium. I jumped up from the floor onto the stage. As I was in midair, I noticed how unusually glossy it looked, and in horror, I remembered it was wet. I landed and slid. Then I heard Mrs. Tipton coming, and not wanting to get caught in the act, I jumped back down onto the carpet. Unfortunately, it wasn't until I was back on the floor that I realized I had paint on the bottom of my shoes."

Elizabeth Willis, Junior

"Back in fall baseball season, when the crickets were really bad, Mr. Story and Mr. Smith dared me to dump a cupful of crickets on my mother's head. I did . . . and have lived to regret it."

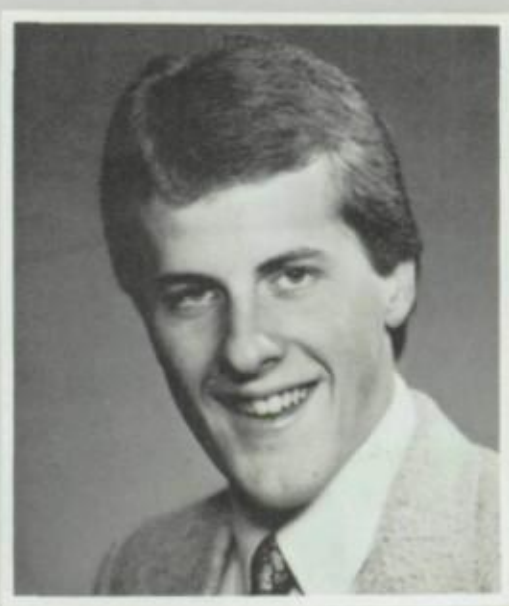
Rocky Shelton, Senior

"In 8th grade, four other friends and I put our names in a hat and drew to see who would steal his parents' car and drive us all to Texas. My name was drawn, so at 11:00 that night, I stuffed pillows under my sheet and found my dad's keys. I put the car in neutral and pushed it out of hearing distance. I picked up my friends, and we took off for Dallas. We drove around for a few hours and got back home at about 6:30 or 7:00 the next morning. When we drove up, I for got to turn the car off and push it. My dad woke up and found me sitting in the car with all my friends who were asleep. I got grounded for a month."

Shawn Mullins, Senior

"Last year, In Dr. Layne's computer programming class, I put Van Halen's 5150 tape in the computer cassette. When she turned it on, it yelled, "Hellooooo, Baby!! " She chunked it in her filing cabinet, and I didn't see that tape for the rest of the day."

Greg Robbins, Sr.



"My freshman year-and only because I was dared- I went into Wal-Mart (the old one) wearing ONLY a coat that just came to my thighs and short marching boots. My hair was dyed red and blue and spiked straight up. Part of the dare was to walk around the store like that, so I did. People started following me everywhere because they thought I was going to shoplift."

Fun Of It!

Jackie Hays, Sr.

"When I was in 5th grade, three of my friends and I took some Christmas ornaments off a Christmas tree downtown. A policeman saw us do it and started running after us, but we had on roller skates and were able to stay away from him. Two of my friends got caught, but the policeman chased this boy and me all the way to his house. (I pretended like I lived there so that the policeman wouldn't go to my house.) He made us give up the ornaments, but there was one flat one that I kept!"

Sixth Hour Chemistry

" One day, when Mr. Crabtree was gone, we had a substitute teacher and were all normally doing our classwork. Just to mess with her mind, when the clock struck two, we all dropped our pencils on the floor, stood up, and sang the National Anthem."

Never Say Goodbye

While sitting in our seats, we listen to what is said
Memories of yesteryear pass through our heads.
As we walk on stage, we wonder if this is real
And nothing could surpass they way that we feel.
When tonight is finally over, our class will part
But the memories of Byng High School, will remain in our hearts.

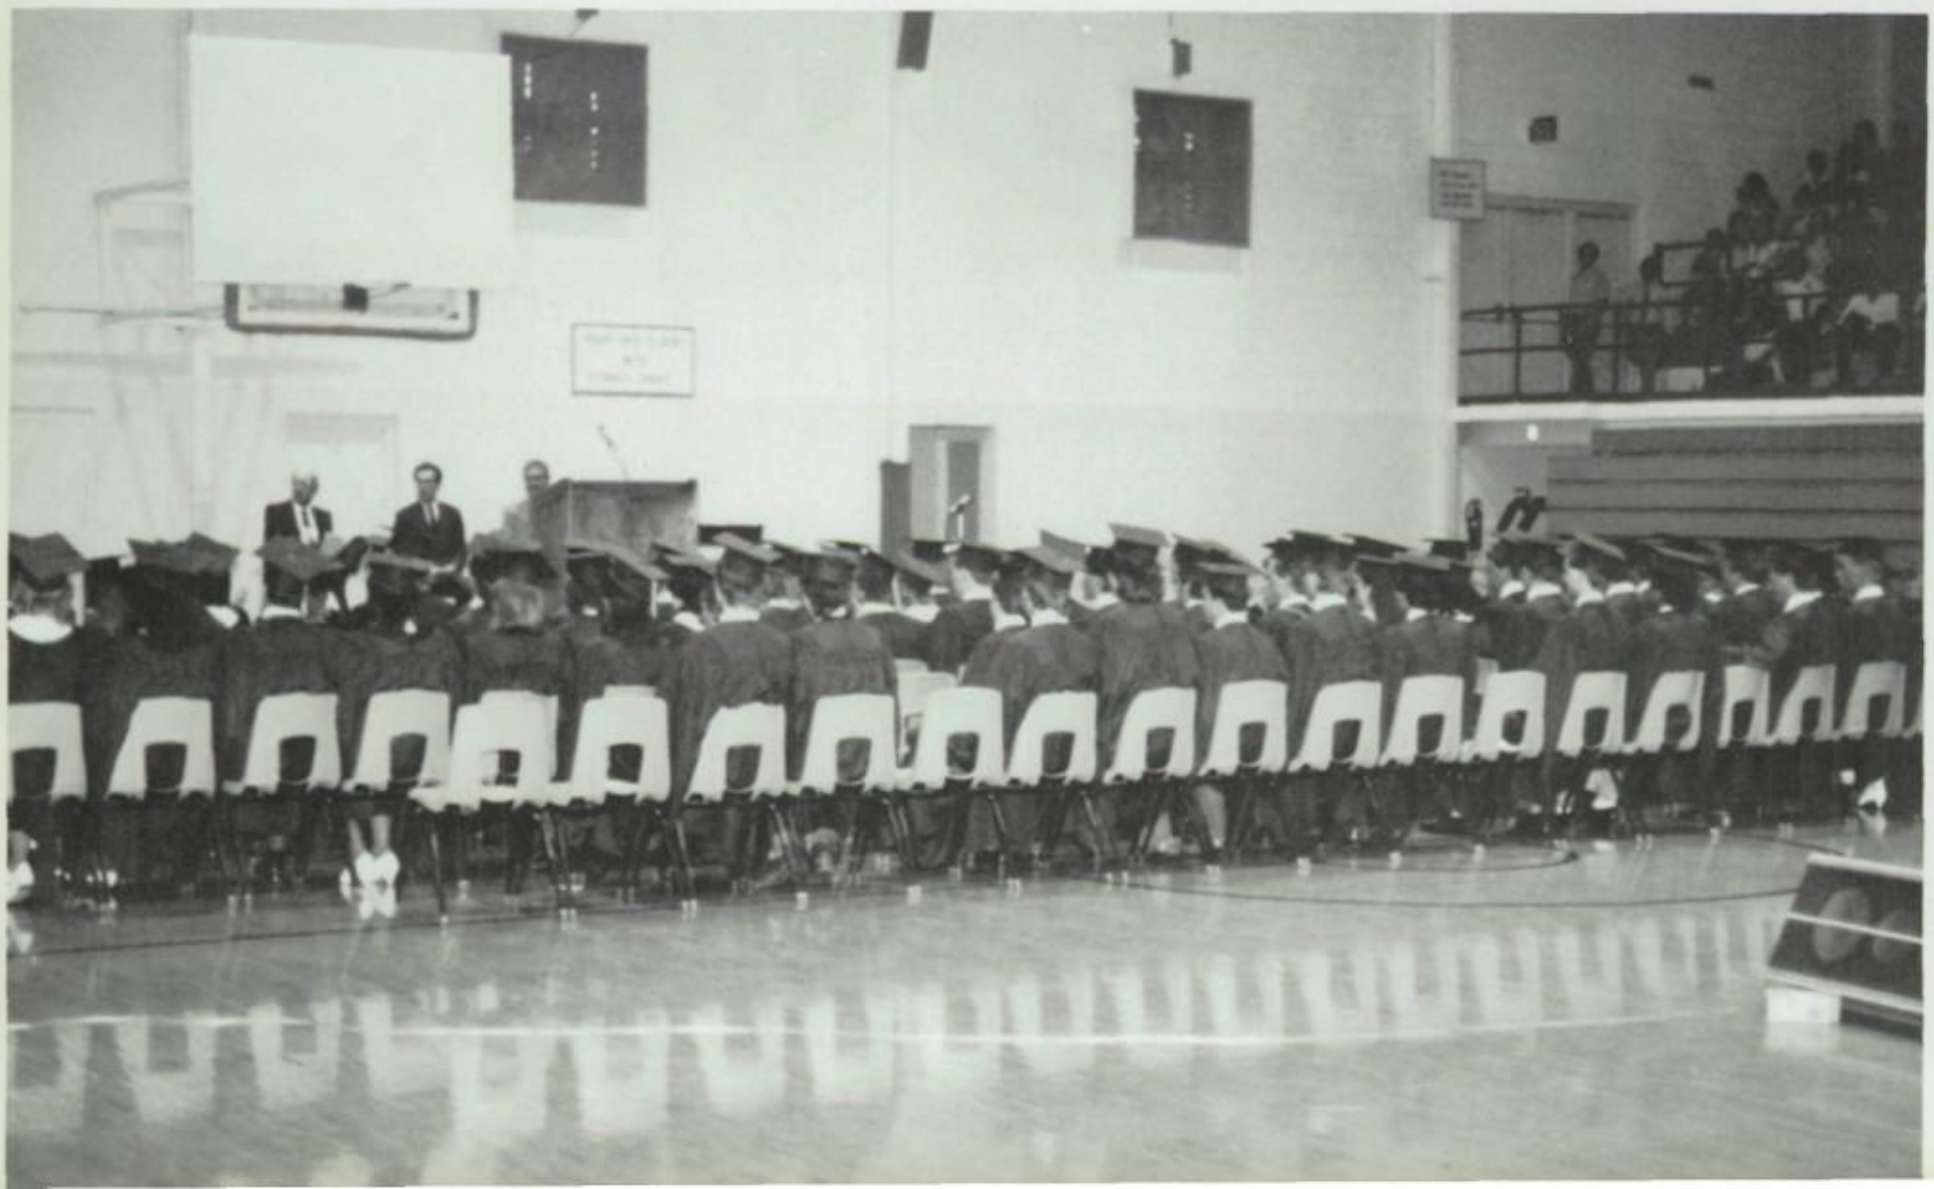
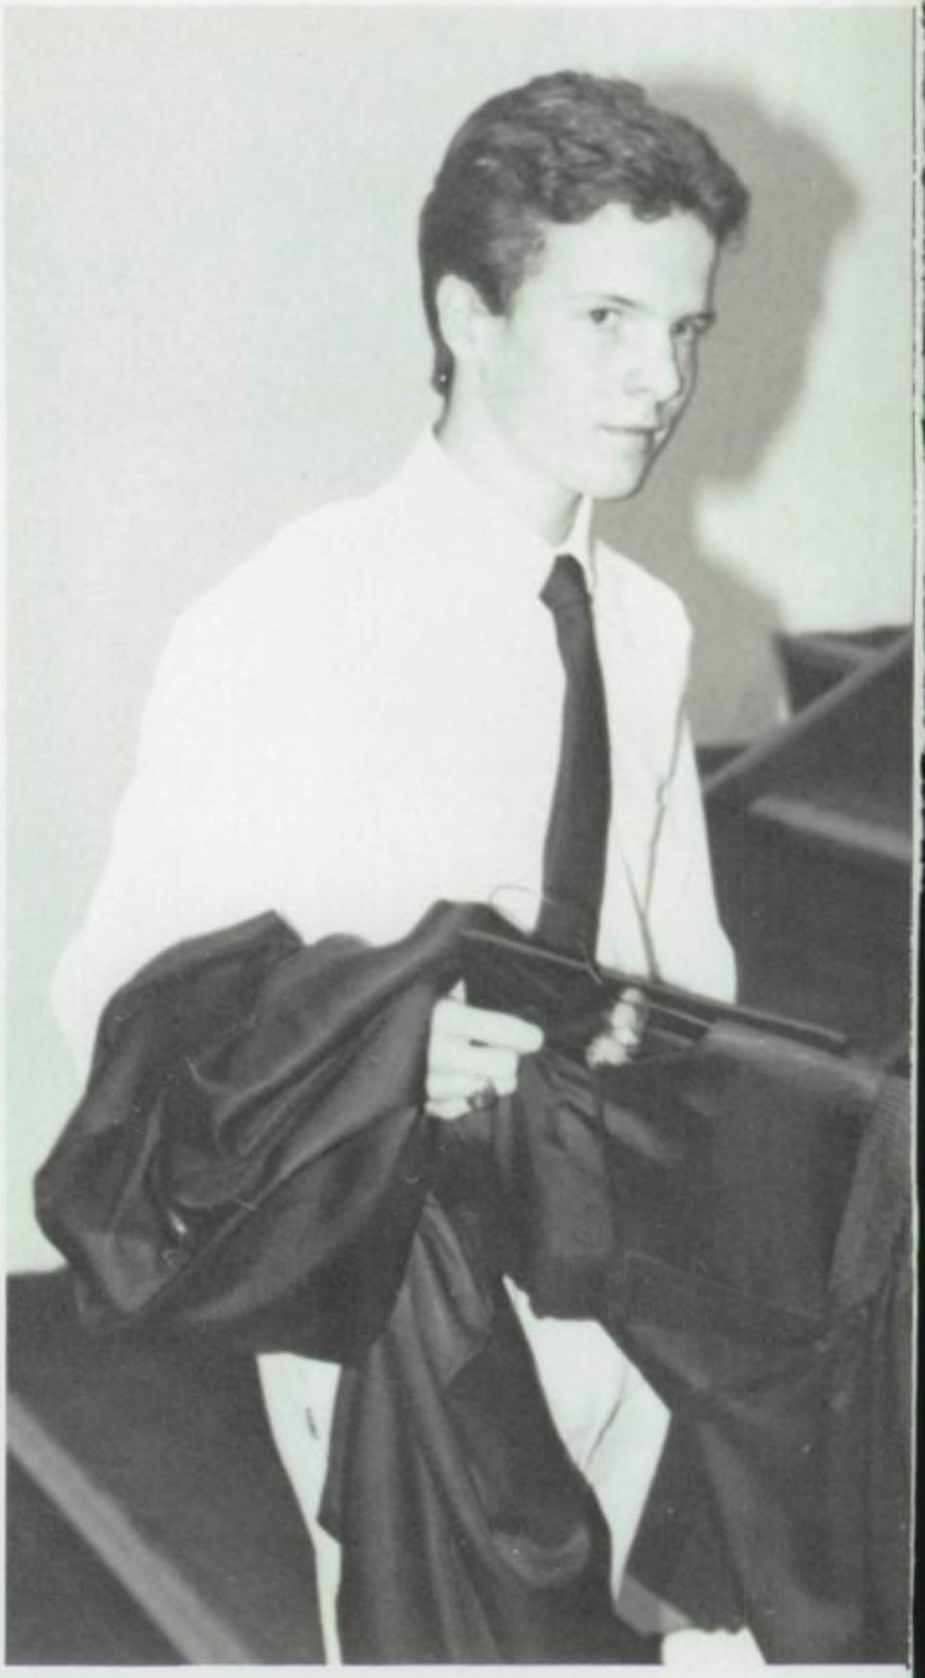
-Marcus LarSalle Nelson





"Tonight, the Class of '87 is unified. We are one. In our hearts, we will never say goodbye to this moment. We will never forget these years."

"If we never meet again, may we finally meet in heaven. God please bless, this class of '87"

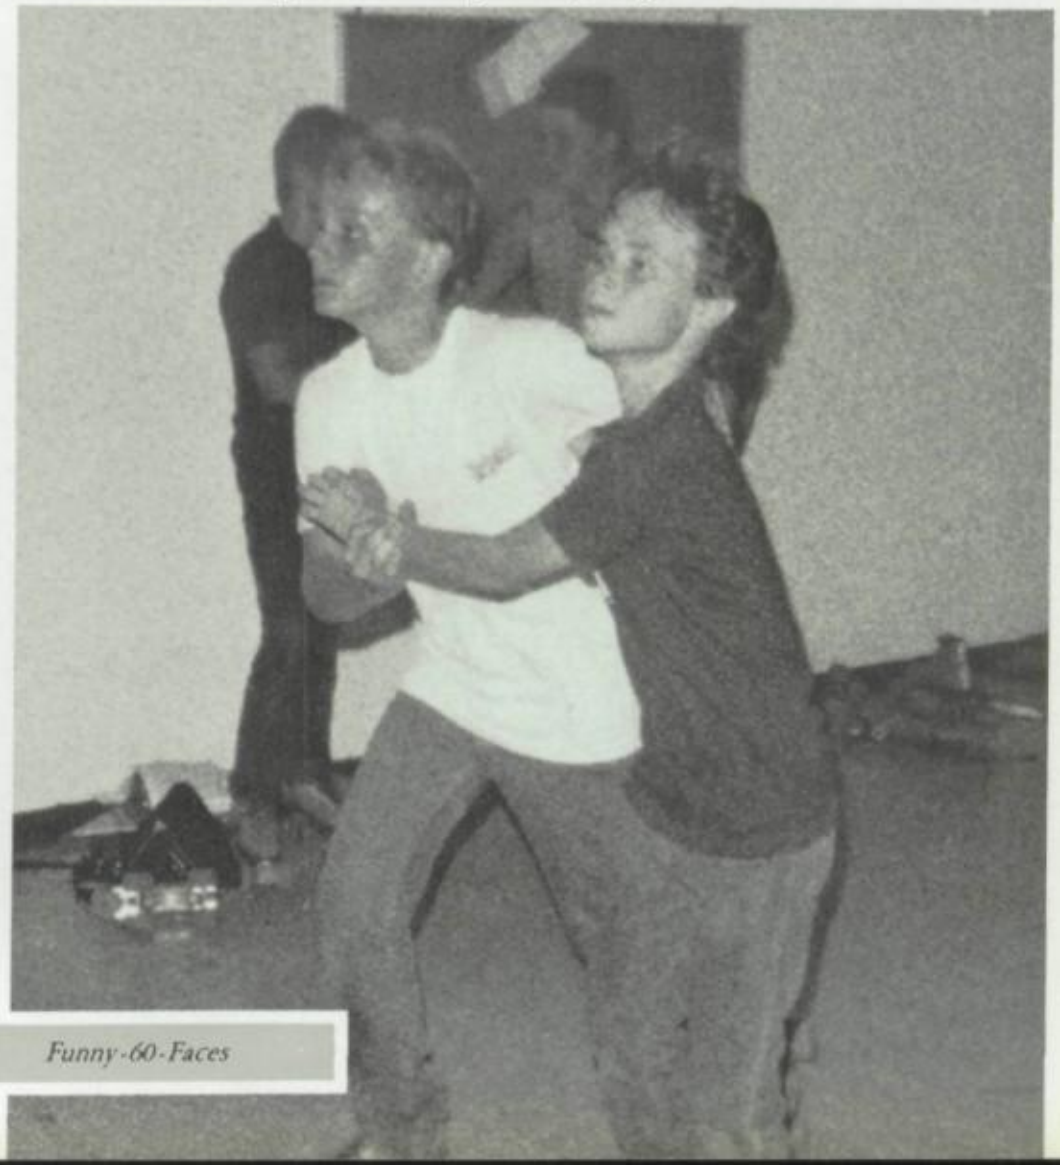
Boog and Bo skate gracefully along, hand in hand.

"Oh my!" Janette Nickell exclaims.



Byng Junior High School is one of the many stepping stones into the adult world. When the bell rings, the halls turn into a huge sea of young, eager faces seeking to learn new things and develop their talents.

Aside from it being a place of learning, it's a way of life. We're just a big family, and like any family, we stick together. Even though there are times of grief, discouragement, and unhappiness, the good times outweigh the bad times. If the walls could talk, they could tell stories of joy and defeat, happiness and sorrow, and of learning how to lose gracefully as well as winning. You would probably be reminded that "attitude" makes the difference and "determination" is the key to success.

People say this is the most "carefree" time of our lives. Yes, we do having loving parents, supportive teachers, and loyal friends which we appreciate. But, we struggle with choices and decisions every day, hoping to make the right ones. Only time will tell. Ten years from now, what will this class have produced—doctors, lawyers, business men and women, teachers? Hopefully, men and women ahwo will contribute and benefit from this society!

Art Demonstration Goes International

"This has been a neat year for the art department!" says teacher Freda Flatt as she recalls several new art experiences for her students.

"We took a troop of kids to Oklahoma City to the Education Fair in the fall where we demonstrated plaster sculpture. As a result of our exposure, we were invited to Tulsa next October to demonstrate our sculpture techniques to the International Visual Literacy Association.

"We have just finished small drawings and paintings to be inserted into programs for the Oklahoma Symphony in Oklahoma City for the month of March, which is Youth Art Month across the nation. As a part of this celebration, three of our students will have art work hung in the Oklahoma State Capitol during March.

"Five students entered their work in the Visions of the Universe contest at Kirkpatrick Center in Oklahoma City. More than 2,000 entires will compete, and we are hopeful that we will be among the 200 chosen to be honored at a banquet in the spring.

"We received a trophy for first place in window decorations for Christmas. The students painted the Ada Evening News' windows. We have also done window decorations and demonstrations at nursing homes during the year.

"My students enjoy competing. We will be going to ECU scholastics meet in February and to Seminole Junior College and Murray State in March. Southeastern State is on our April schedule.

Band Bolsters School Spirit

Dana Atwood, senior, has been drum major for the past two years.

The band's joyous enthusiasm brings a beat that brightens our lives on many occasions. Whether it's an orchestra providing themes and accompaniment for vocalists in a major musical, or a jazz band cheering on the Pirates at a ball game, the band makes the event more fun for all of us. They fill us with pride and school spirit when we see them marching in parades and contests.

The band has undergone great growth during the past two years under the leadership of Rozzy Purdy. By expanding the elementary band, taking in fifth graders for the first time, she has insured that she has a fresh crop of musicians coming on. Admittedly, the band will feel the loss next year of award-winning seniors such as Mark Balthrop, Casey Saunders, Dana Atwood, Lisa Spann, and Randy Hooser, but happily there are replacements who will be just as enthusiastic about playing "for the fun of it."

High school music is one of the most recognized groups on campus. (They're the ones that dress up in tuxes and dresses and sing, so we'll get out of class.) No, seriously, this class is full of some of the most dedicated, hard working, and talented kids on campus. They participate in numerous contests as well as concerts for the community as well as for the school. A typical year for music starts out with hard work from day one to prepare for Fall Concert and Little Dixie Chorus Festival. After Little Dixie, they drag out the Christmas music for their Christmas Concert for the school. When they return after the first of the year, it's time to buckle down to some serious theory study and preparation for District Contest. After District, the groups and solos who made a rating of "1" at District continue on to State Contest. Along with the polishing for competition material, the Spring Concert is being pulled together. After the final performance of the Spring Concert, there are a few precious weeks for leisure fun.

Making all-state chorus was a great, exciting experience for me. I was fortunate enough to make the choir joined there by approximately 250 other members from Oklahoma. The tryouts consisted of songs from three different languages, all of which must be musically correct. I came under the finest music instructors in the nation. After about 12 hours of rehersals, the choir joined with the band and orchestra, giving a 3-hour concert at the Civic Center Music Hall. All of this was made possible by my director, Mr. Ken Hudson, to whom I send my gratitude. Making all-state chorus definitely will be one of the most memorable and educating times of my life.

Shakespeare

Theatre! Just to say it makes me smile in memory of the good times and dream of the exciting future in store. It also reminds me of the long hours spent memorizing lines in the bathroom, the longer evenings of rehearsals, and the longest days of waiting in anticipation for that opening performance. But just ask any student of Judy Tipton's Drama department if the hard work is worth it and you'll hear a resounding YES!

The production of West Side Story was the first undertaking of the year. It is considered to be one of Broadway's most difficult musicals both in the instrumental and choreographical aspects, but thanks to the dedication of many students and teachers, all seven performances were a success. The musical score, referred to by many as an orchestral nightmare, couldn't have been played successfully without the direction of Rozzie Purdy. Luanne Weiss, a local dance instructor, had to be brought in to teach us a few Puerto Rican moves along with many other difficult steps. Oh, what a sense of accomplishment we felt when the guys could finally lift the girls.

The days and days spent rehearsing gave the cast a chance to develop many close relationships. These bonds are typical of the closness shared in drama year round. Without this closeness, we would never have been able to tolerate each other at those 7:00a.m. makeup calls.

Due to the popularity of drama, enrollment nearly doubled, thus another class had to be added. Drama I is taken by most students making their debut on the stage, and the class is filled with many talented underclassman. They gave a real boost to West Side Story, and are now getting their first taste of speech tournaments, placing in many events.

To give these new members some extra help and to promote unity within drama, the fraternity Beta Alpha Phi (Byng Actors and Players) was formed. Members of Drama II selected pledges who were pinned at an initiation ceremony. The inductees faced many tests and trials, not too abusive, to become pledges. They all passed to join the ranks of a group rich in tradition, yet richer in a sense of pride in their accomplishments.

Only through our hard work do we take pride in what we do. Our accomplishments consist of trying to please you, the audience. We struggle for that one reward only you can give, your applause. It is a symbol of your appreciation for our art and for a job well done. Applause . . . that final thing we hear before the curtain goes down.

Byng Theatre Presents:

WEST SIDE STORY

"Even after curtain call, we're always hamming it up!"
Tony and Maria share "One Hand, One Heart" in their first vows to each other.
The gangs on the streets of New York always walk tall- whether they're Jets or Sharks.
"Yes, Officer Krupke, you've done it again- this boy don't need a job; he needs a year in the pen."

Energy was never lacking when the Puerto Ricans started tapping, especially in their defence of countries.

"We came to America with our arms open . . . you came with your mouth open!"

It's a chilly November morning; the alarm goes off at 5:30 a.m. You've had only a couple of hours of good sleep, for dress rehearsal last night ran late. You don't mind though because your heart is already racing 90 miles per hour. Make-up call is at 7 a.m., and for the next four days you're going to be a star!

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is an inside look at thoughts and feelings of a Byng student who was involved in production of West Side Story, Nov. 5-8. Don Cross had a part of Riff, the leader of the Jets gang.

The director announces that you have only five minutes until curtain. Everyone gathers in the "Green Room" (drama room or actors' lounge) for the traditional prayer chain. "ONE, TWO THREE . . . BREAK A LEG!" Then suddenly after all the "Break a Legs" are spoken, you find yourself racing around the auditorium in the action-packed prologue of Act I.

Back stage then you stand patiently, waiting to go on. At first you get a few "butterflies" in your stomach, but once you're on, you don't have time to think about your own feelings. You become the character you're playing, concerned only with what he is thinking and feeling. When you're backstage, time goes slow, but on stage it seems to fly. Amazing how fast seven performances in four days can go by.

West Side Story is really a major accomplishment and all of us associated with it will always remember. Rumor had it that the drama department had bitten off more than we could chew, but I think all will agree that we chewed it up with gusto and digested it as well!

Now it's over; the set is struck; costumes are put away, and everyone feels a littlesad and let down, for something we all worked on so hard for so long is suddenly gone. On the other hand, we still have the feeling we got during the last performance during curtain call . . . standing ovation . . . there isn't anything in the world that beats that feeling!

Don Cross

"When you're a Jet - you stay a Jet!" The energetic final pose of the jets.

C.O.E.

Cooperative Office Education is a class with hard working people. They study a variety of office machines, work on personality and learn how to get a job. The students also learn how to be accepted in the business world.

Being in COE can be frustrating at times, as any girl that has been in the class will agree. Having to work on the computer, the adding machines, filing and having to maintain a businesslike appearance makes you appreciate your spare time and wearing jeans that much more.

But COE definitely has its advantages. The students gain self-confidence and learn to work with others. It prepares them for the future and for handling different businesslike situations.

Being in COE has helped the students have confidence in themselves. If you're interested in being a business person or you like to work with others, COE is definitely the class to take.

Journalism . . . First Chaos Then Calm.

"Where's my layout?" "Who took my pictures?" "What did you do with my story?" These are questions commonly asked in a Journalism or Yearbook class. If you haven't been around these two classes when its time for a deadline, your missing something. They all seem to be running around like chickens with their heads cut off.

The Journalism and Yearbook staffs are hard working teams. They work hard to bring out the best edition possible. The staffs not only have the students to please, they have parents, administration, the school board, and teachers. Not an easy thing to do, but with hard work and determintion, the staffs finish everything just in time for every deadline.

Dag Svihus practices his interviewing skills when Jerry Corvin, long time school board member, visits the newspaper class.

Then Chaos Again!

"Don needs to get that copy written."
"Marcus, have you finished that layout yet?"
"Greg, please don't make me ask again; just go out and get that picture!"
"WE'RE NEVER GONNA MEET THIS DEADLINE!"

Headaches, sleepless nights, bald spots on heads, and fistfuls of hair - such things are familiar to editors. Fortunately for me, I share stress with my co-editor, Dana Sayre. Although having two editors does not alleviate the pressure, the good part is that if our yearbook flops, there's someone else to blame it on!

Dana and I were experiencing the previously-mentioned signs of stress when we realized that our first deadline was a week away and one whole signature (16 pages) was not even done. Now Dana and I are rather level-headed girls; we know how to handle pressure - we panic. We really panicked when we found our color deadline upon us. "What are we going to do?" we whinned.

We presented the problem to our staff and some idiot suggested a lock-in on Friday night to complete our pages. Seeing no alternative, we agreed.

At that time neither Dana nor I had a date for Friday night. We are editors loyal to our staff, our advisor, and to the cause of Byng's best-ever yearbook. When we got an invitation to go on a date Friday night, our priorities were firmly in place. We had no problem reaching a decision on where to spend the early part of the evening.

We had a really good time with our dates Friday night, and at about midnight we dragged ourselves into the yearbook lock-in. Amidst cries of "Where have you been?", "So glad our editors could make it!" and other sarcastic remarks, we settled into work.

After staring at the one sentence I had written an hour ago and realizing that the Sprite I'd been drinking was caffeine-free, I grabbed someone's blanket and trudged back to the storeroom. My faithful co-editor had already preceded me and was slumped zombie-like in a chair. I curled up on a few boxes and fell asleep. I awoke an hour later to find my nose moussed up. I complained loudly and made scathing remarks about immaturity, but nobody admitted wielding the mousse can.

I went back to work and worked diligently for four straight hours. Layouts were designed; copy was written, and pictures were printed. By 6 a.m. we lacked taking only one picture and writing one article.

As the sun rose that Saturday morning, so did our spirits. Deciding we'd worked hard enough, some staff members left; some sacked out, and Dana and I breathed a sigh of relief. We had lived through the night and actually accomplished something.

So, that was the unprecedented yearbook all-nighter which occurred last weekend. Deadline is now three days away. Today our dear advisor, Mary Willis, suggested we change pages six and seven. Now we must take, develop, and print more pictures, write more copy and draw other layouts.

"Robby, can you get started on this layout?"
"Eric, please process that film."
"Candace, will you write those captions?"
"HOW ARE WE EVER GOING TO MEET THIS DEADLINE???" Dana and I scream in unified exasperation as our first emerge from our skulls with yet another tuft of hair.

WHY HISTORY?

"Why do I have to study history?" Have you ever asked this question? It is a good question to think about.

Did you ever look at an old photograph album or listen as your grandparents told you about the "good old days"? Learning about the old days helps you to learn why you are the kind of person you are. History is the study of past events.

Learning about the past helps you to live better in the present and to prepare for the future. By studying how people acted in the past, you can get ideas about how you would act in similar circumstances. This is how you learn the "lessons of history." It has been said, "Those who fail to learn the lessons of history are destined to repeat them."

History will also help you to understand ways of life difficult from your own. History tells not only about other times, but also about other countries, other customs, and other religions. You can compare your life and ideas with those you study about. This makes it easier to understand why you live the way you do and to know about all the possibilities that are open to you.

There are many kinds of history to be studied. The history of Western civilization is usually divided into ancient history, medieval history, and modern history. There is also much interesting history about the civilizations of Asia, Africa, and South America. Local history — the story of the area in which you live — can be fascinating. You can visit places where events took place and perhaps talk to people who remember them.

History can really seem to come alive when you visit a historical place. For example, a replica of the first permanent English settlement in America has been built at Jamestown in Virginia. You can walk the streets and see Jamestown as it was in the 1600's. At Mesa Verde in Colorado, the National Park Service has restored Indian cliff dwellings. In these rooms of stone and sun-baked brick, you can imagine the life of the Indians who lived there in about 100 A.D.

In the American History classes we have some activities that help students learn about their United States. Each week pupils draw a map of one of the states of the Union. They identify the state's capital, other important cities, rivers, and points of interest.

Tomorrow's history is learned on "Current Events Day." Each student gives a report of an event that occurred the past week that has world, national, state, or local importance.

Both of these activities add to students' knowledge of our country and world as it is today and help them be aware of the world around them.

The mathematics department here at Byng is committed to excellence.

In planning our curriculum, student need is the predominant consideration. The high school curriculum includes general and consumer mathematics, Algebras I and II, plane geometry, trigonometry, math analysis, and calculus. Selection of the courses you will take should be made thoughtfully. Think of not only your practical needs but also of your intellectual needs. Everyone needs a challenge! Accept this challenge to acquire a strong education in mathematics. You will not be disappointed. You will be prepared to face the problems and enjoy the promise of tomorrow.

The math department sponsors the math club, Mu Alpha Theta, which offers students the opportunity to associate socially to hear speakers from various careers, and the opportunity to work together on projects for a number of competitions. Mu Alpha Theta members conduct a "Math Facts" program in the 3rd, 4th, and 5th grades at Byng and Homer providing rewards for achieving levels of excellence.

The mathematics department also sponsors and coaches Math Counts team in the 7th and 8th grades. This team participated locally and statewide in competitions over advanced math topics.

Students, we teachers in the mathematics department challenge you to discover the diversity, utility, and yes, the beauty of mathematics. A Danish proverb says, "He who would leap high must take a long run." Mathematics is a critical element in that long run. Be excited about your future! Prepare for it! Mathematics is the map, the language, the tool of your future. Mathematics is not a world unto itself, it is interrelated with architecture, music, economics, engineering, accounting, physical and biological science, statistics, sociology, and computer science. Its range of applications is infinite, its richness of ideas is invigorating, and its reach for perfection is intriguing.

At one time, clean lines could be drawn between major fields of science. Today those lines are gone. All sciences are related. Everything about life as biologists understand it can be thought of in terms of a complex biochemical system. Growth, response, and heredity all result from chemical activity. Physics, too, is important to the bioligist. Without physics, we could not hope to understand the changes in matter and energy involved in life.

Throughout recorded history people have used science to improve their way of life. How could we feed the growing population without the technology available to the farmer? Think of all the people you know and love that have been helped by modern medicine. Science has also produced nuclear weapons. Science is not in itself "good" or "bad". What people do with science may be.

Science is not simply a collection of facts which never changes, nor should it be viewed as a subject to avoid. Science is not something you do — science is what you are.

Something For

Vocational Classes at Byng offer "something for everyone." Whether it be the opportunity to work on hair, a car, a piece of wood, or even a machine, vocational classes give students a headstart on their future career.

The students enrolled in these classes learn the basics and get a hands-on experience with a career they might be interested in later on in life. They help the school as well as themselves by doing odd jobs on the campus. This in turn saves the school some money.

Vocational classes also give the students the chance to get a job immediately after high school or further continue their education at a vocational college. Obviously, vocational classes are a vital part of Byng School.

Bodymans Work Not So Simple

When I first started to learn about the auto body trade, I tried to act as if I knew all about what I was doing.

My instructor, Kyle Jones, knew that I didn't know as much as I was pretending. He told me he once knew a man who was so busy learning the tricks of the trade that he forgot to learn the trade.

I was clumsy at almost everything. Even on small dents, I had to work them three or four times before I could get them right. I would paint something small and simple, but I'd have paint running all over the place. My co-workers said they could set buckets under the paint job and get quite a lot of paint to recycle.

Welding was another problem for me. I could weld metal pieces together, but they had a tendency to break. I also learned metal cutting, but my cuts never seemed to be straight.

Fiberglass was another challenge. When I mixed the ingredients for fiberglass repair, it looked like a mess. When I spread it, it looked like a mess. When I worked it, there was no doubt about it --- it was a mess.

I learned to replace panels such as fenders, decklids, doors, etc. Panels I replaced took countless hours to align. I then learned detailing, but for a long time molding and pin stripes never seemed to go on straight.

Once I almost shattered a windshield I was trying to install. The instructor stopped me just before I hit it to get it into place. Next I was given the job of putting Revel molding around the windshiled. I broke several clips, and it took me an additional 30 minutes to find more.

Like all students who start out in auto body, I've made many blunders, and I've made many blunders, and I've taken lots of criticism and kidding from more experienced friends, but I've learned, and now I feel that I have earned some respect. Friends ask me for help, and my work is recognized as being accurate and dependable.

I'd recommend auto body to anyone interested in a good vocation, but I'm living proof that one doesn't become an overnight success as a body man.

Future Business Leaders Of America

I spent many hours of studying the accounting book both on and off campus. The day finally arrived. Each FBLA chapter in the state sent its top two students to compete in the event. Confident that I had done my best, I placed the test on the table, walked from the room, and patiently awaited the awards assembly. At the assembly the top ten students were called to the stage in random order. The placings were then announced beginning with tenth and proceeding to first. Hearing my name called as first-place winner in the whole state in Accounting I was indeed an awesome feeling. Because of my first place win, the state FBLA organization will pay for my expenses to the National FBLA Leadership Conference In Anaheim, California, July 1-4. While I am there, I will take another test. This time, though, I'll be competing against the top two people from each state. Winning state really highlighted my academic life at Byng; however state is only a beginning. Nationals, HERE I COME!

The Making Of

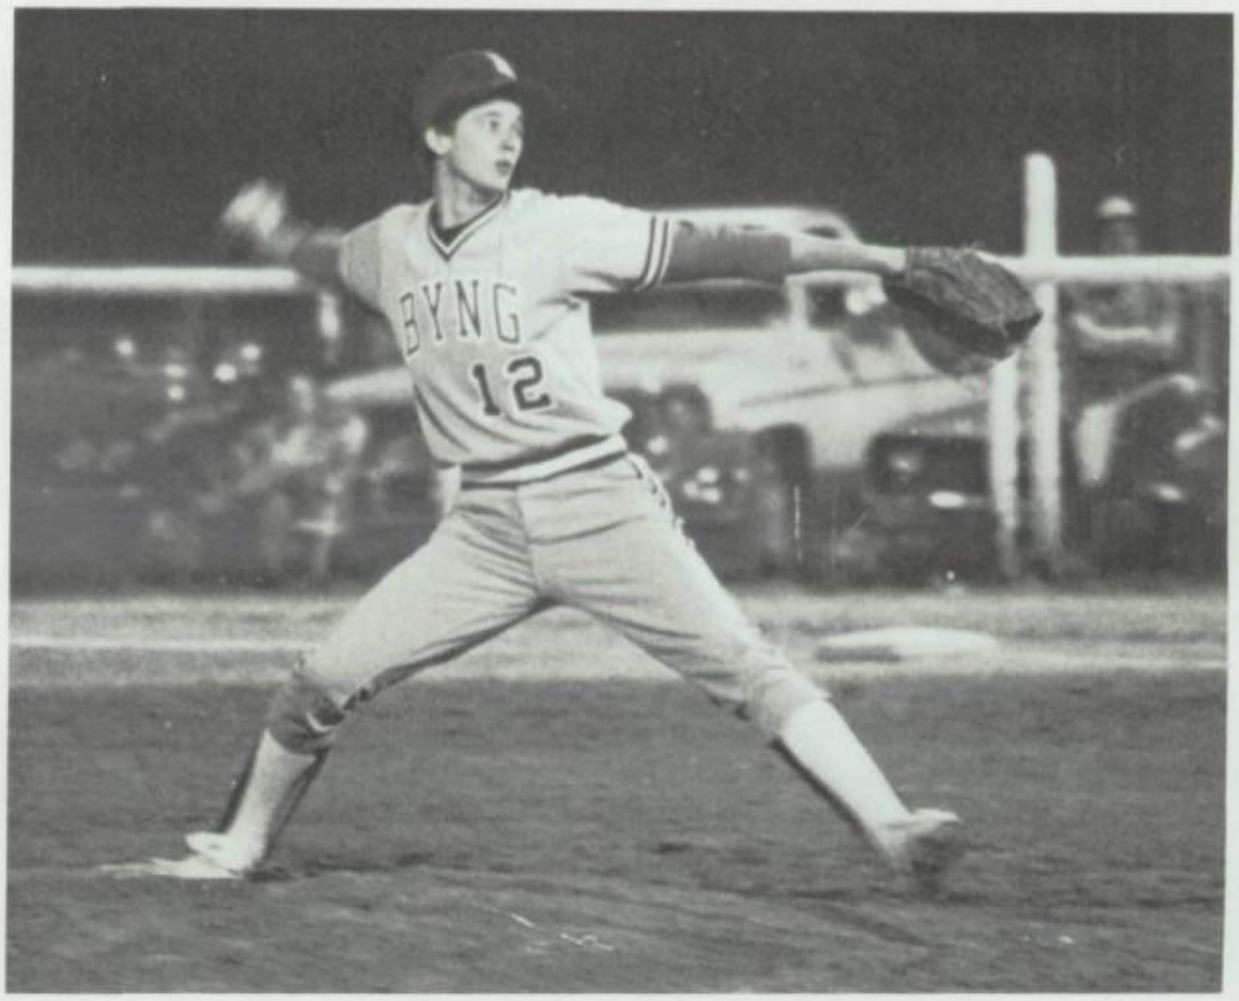
A Champion

When I started playing high school basketball four years ago winning a state championship seemed, as it is for most, an illusive dream. Today, I Traci Henley, have realized this dream and much more. I am very honored to have received the recognition and many awards that have been given to me.

It is hardest to realize that my high school career has ended. I still feel as if I will be coming back next year, to put in more time, hard work, and pride into the game of basketball.

In retrospect, I can't help but realize how much this school and the basketball program have done for me. My only wish as I graduate is that I will continue to bring honor to Byng High School, Mr. Marvin Stokes, Coach Rocky Clark, and all who have helped me through some difficult but very rewarding times.

Traci Henley
Senior 1987



"Knowing it will all soon be over makes playing these last games kind of sad," remarks senior Toby Sanders. "Three years ago Jimmy, Larry, and I started out just hoping to play. Hard work and patience proved to be the key to improvement. Our happiest moment had to be winning the state tournament. The thing I learned about winning is the time that it takes to realize the victory. When I lose, I know it is over, but after winning the state championship I felt like I should keep playing or something. I leave the baseball program with a lot of pride. I know I gained much from the program and hope that I contributed something in return. But the bottom line after three years is that we were good sports and we had a lot of fun."

Toby Sanders

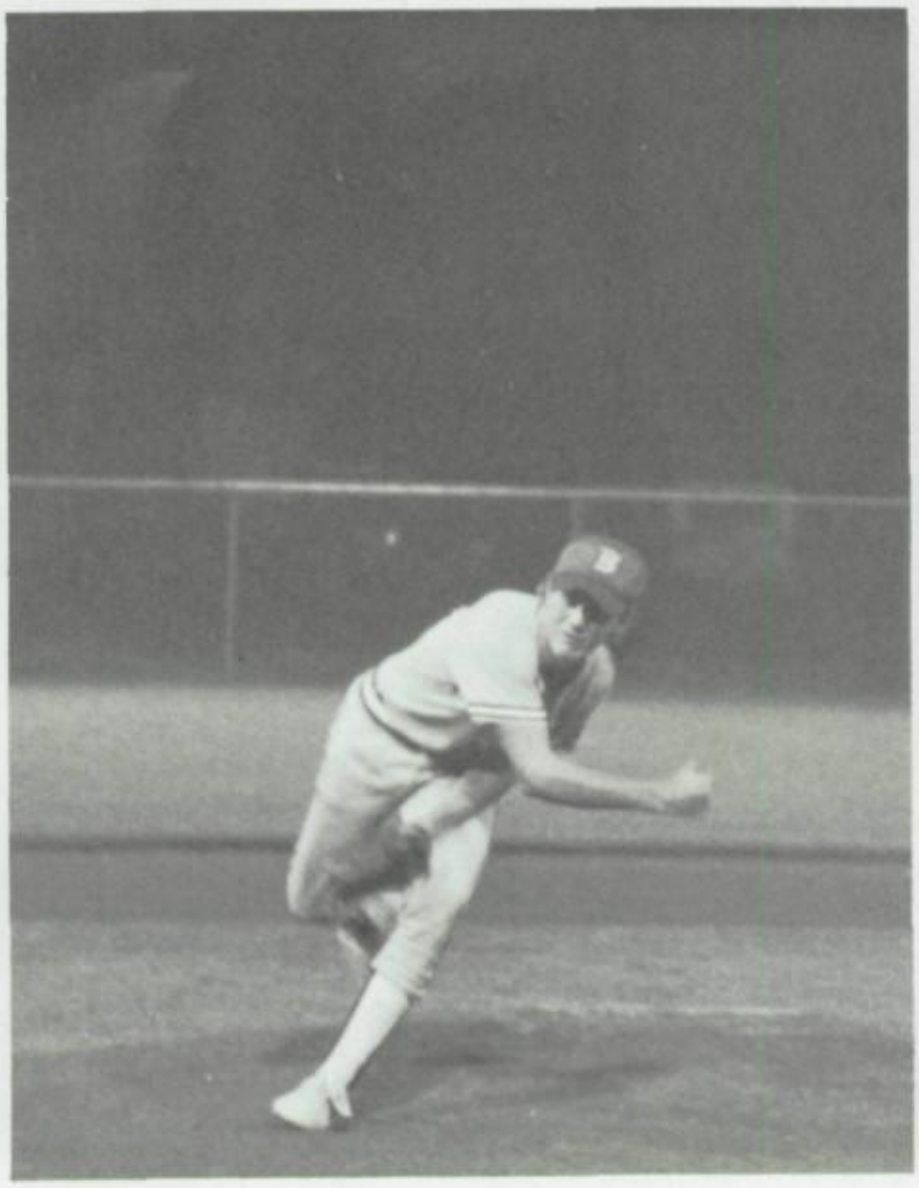
"Leaving high school basketball is very hard for me. It is what I have worked for since the fifth grade. High school basketball is the only thing I know. I'll have to adjust to a whole different set of rules and people next year. It's going to be tough.

Marcus Nelson
Senior 1987



"I think that I will remember my friends above everything else. Winning state in the fall will always be a special memory for me. It's nice to feel successful. I am proud of the team, and of its accomplishments. As a team, we always worked hard, maintained a good attitude, and had fun.

Larry Smith

Putting his baseball career into perspective, senior Jimmy Jennings said, "It gave me a real goal to shoot for, and that is certainly something." He went on to add that the secret to the teams success could be found in their willingness to work hard. "We played smart ball all the way through," remarked Jennings. "Any championship team will use its brains as well as physical prowess. Winning makes a person realize that any goal is attainable if he is willing to sacrifice and pay the price. I will really miss baseball. I gained a lot from the sport, and it probably kept me out of trouble."

Jimmy Jennings

THE SECRET OF

Byng is a school that is rich in tradition — the tradition of winning. Every competitive organization on campus has experienced the thrill of victory; consequently, masses of trophies have accumulated through the years with most of them attributed to the activity that made Byng famous: Sports.

Over the years, Byng has claimed 11 state titles in girls' basketball, 5 in boys' basketball, and 13 in boys' baseball. This year alone, three state trophies have been added to Byng's exuberant trophy cases. Boys' baseball claimed the state title, as did girls' basketball, and boys' basketball succeeded its 1986 state championship with a silver runner-up ball. That's quite a feat for one school in one year; that's the winning tradition of Byng. But what gives Byng that tradition? Just what is the secret of our success?

In the fall of 1986, the Byng baseball team fought against all odds to capture the state championship. Although being in the shadows of last year's seniors, Toby Sanders, Larry Smith, and Jimmy Jennings stepped out into the light with leadership and confidence that led to victory. According to an avid fan and head coach's wife, Trudy Green, "these boys don't criticize or intimidate the younger players; rather they set good examples that make others look up to them." More importantly than the team's baseball abilities, the unity which has grown from this attitude and action is how Byng wins its games. "And this unity isn't just on the field," Mrs Green said. "They go hunting and fishing together — they all get along. And because there aren't any problems in attitudes, more time is left for baseball."

Baseball is very important to each player, yet they don't consider it work; they enjoy it. Coach Tim Green claims they practice just as hard as they play in the games. It is just a matter of loving the sport. Desire is more important than talent. "The kids never give up," Mrs. Green said. One important reason they don't other than not letting their teammates down, is because of the continuous support of their parents. "They don't thrive on recognition. Although they are proud, they are not boastful. They want recognition for their performance — not for waht they tell people."

The state championship, won in the fall of 1986, was Coach Tim Green's first state title as head coach. This trophy repeesents the dedication, energy, enthusiasm, endurance, excitement, elation, and pride of each player . . . and the unity of the entire team. "I don't know what else to say," laughed Mrs. Green. Then her laughter softened into a sincere smile, "They're just wonderful kids."

As with baseball, the key to the success of girls' basketball at Byng has been unity. "The girls' basketball team of 86-87 are definitely the most team-oriented I have ever played with," commented Junior forward Elizabeth Willis. "Beginning this summer, I wouldn't say that we were close at all. We got together right before we played, and after we finished, each person left. There wasn't any unity — mainly because in the past there was only unity in parts.

"I feel like after we lost to Star Spencer, we started pulling together. We knew that if we were going to win state, or even get to state, we were going to have to play as a team. It was going to take all 14 of us. Everybody felt this.

"After winning against Stigler, we knew we could do it. We had what it took, and we had it set in our minds that we were going to WIN STATE. This was the third year in a row that we had made it, but there was a totally different feeling.

"Winning state is probably one of the greatest feelings any of us will ever have," concluded Willis as that tremendous Pirate pride lit up her face, "but the best thing about it is that we won it together!"

Togetherness is something the Byng boys' basketball team understood quite well. During the 1986-87 basketball season, the Byng boys reigned as the Class 3A State Champions after winning the title in the 1986 playoffs. To maintain this prestigious classification, the team's efforts were doubled in dedication, and endurance proved an important factor. As Coach Alan Simpson put it, "It was a very tough season; the monkey that Rocky (Clarke) will have on his back next year was on ours this year." Tough or not, the Pirate boys sailed through their season with a record of 26 wins and only 4 losses. The odds of a 2-year reign looked very promising. However, early in the playoffs, the Pirates fell to Sulphur in a surprising upset, and they battled desperately through seven games to compensate for the early loss. Finally, they won their ticket to the state tournament.

In the state playoffs, enthusiasm was twice as strong as both the Byng boys and girls advanced through first the quarter-finals, and then the semi-finals, to at last reach the climactic final game. The oddity of both teams playing in the state finals was a feat unequaled by any school since 1972. Thus, the energy which pulsated the State Fair Arena in Oklahoma City on March 14th was incomparable.

In response to the girls' success earlier in the day, shouts of elation echoed throughout the crowd; excitement began to build as the boys prepared to match the victory of the Lady Pirates. At this point, the second year reign seemed very tangible. The boys had rallied through twenty-eight games with the charisma that earned them their title, and now although they faced Millwood, having one of its best teams of all time, the championship still seemed possible. However, Millwood's talent proved to be "too much," Simpson stated, as the Falcon's ran away with an early lead, but Byng never slacked off. Their gutsy determination was prominent to the end, but the scoreboard spelled out the inevitable. Finally a shadow fell over the hopes of the Pirate fans, and a voice choked with tears rang out in despair, "C'mon, Scooby!" When at last the final buzzer sounded, the players began to weep openly. Because they had once seen the priceless shine of championship, the silver ball now seemed dull.

The Pirate team finished its season 28-5, and was named the 1987 State Runner-up. "That's a title that 94 other teams would love to have," Superintendent Marvin Stokes stated. Although they lost their final game, they were still winners, and thus, they carried on the Byng tradition.

Yes, the Pirates do have that winning tradition, but the two previously asked questions were not answered: What gives Byng that tradition? Just what is the secret of our success?

In each sport at Byng School, seven prominent factors are present. They are: dedication, energy, enthusiasm, endurance, excitement, elation and pride. When these seven attitues are unified, this is success.

ELEMENTARY PRINCIPAL EMPHASIZES STUDENT/PARENT INVOLVEMENT

My first year as an elementary principal has been enjoyable, productive, and rewarding. Through the combined effort of seventeen faculty members for grades two through four, students have stayed involved in school affairs and achieved academically.

First, two new programs have proved the students more individual attention. A supplemental math class to reinforce classroom instruction was taught by entry-year teacher Mrs. Kathy Lofton. Additionally, the classroom teachers used the Computer Lab to maintain skills introduced to students in the classroom.

Two musical productions coordinated by elementary music director Kathy Lofton involved all 289 elementary students:

At Thanksgiving, students generous contributions of food filled nine baskets. In March, students collected and donated over $2000 to Jump-Rope-for-Heart, a unified AHA effort coordinated by Janice Hobbs. In April, two fourth graders Lori Starkey and Austin Orphan won the first Byng Direct Pee Wee Spelling Contest.

Four awards assemblies honored students who were scholastic achievers as well as those with perfect attendance. Throughout the entire year, parents stayed in close contact with the teachers and me. Their support and trust for the Byng School system made our job easier and their children winners.

Day 1 in 7th Grade

I tear through the hall trying to remember where my locker and next class is. I finally find my locker the minute the bell rings for class. Digging through the books and notes to find the books that I need, I find that one book that has been hiding from me. I slam my locker closed and go with the flow of the crowd to my classroom, which, thank-goodness, is nearby.

I ease into my seat so that I am not noticed by the teacher who is starting to take role call.

I must look uptight because one of my friends whispers across the isle, "Relax, this teacher isn't as strict as the last one we had."

Finally, lunch time! We raced up the hill only to find all the lines reached the door. Seeing that the regular line was moving faster, we choose it. After waiting for what seemed like a life-time, we received our trays. We found a table and began eating when we noticed that it was already time to go back to class. We wolfed down our last bites and raced back down the hill to start all over again with trying to find books and classes in this new world.

Seventh grade will be a drestic change from the sixth grade. I am sure that there will be a lot of adjustments to make. Having a different teacher and room for each class might be fun, getting through the hall to your locker and then to your room in five minutes will be difficult, but I'll get the hang of it. With all the books and papers for each class, it will be hard keeping up with them. Even though seventh grade sounds hectic and challenging, I am looking forward to getting there.

Prospective pilot Mary Schafer, 11, a sixth grader, was undaunted by three-to-one odds, boys over girls, at the Space Camp she attended last weekend at the Space and Rocket Center, Huntsville, Ala.

A perfect minature rocket launch and a successful mock space shuttle mission helped Schafer to win one of three awards given at the camp. Officials told her she had won the Right Stuff Award for being "one step ahead of the other kids."

Schafer's mother, Carla Murray, said weekend space camps have been added because of increased applications this year. A movie which had the camp as its setting was released a few months ago sparking even more interest in the government-sponsored camp where participants are allowed to experience many of the same types of training given to U.S. astronauts.

Although the weekend session was half as long as the regular session, Schafer said the campers not only participated in the three main events: miniture rocket launch, decision making for a large space structure and mock shuttle mission, but visited the museum, saw movies in the space dome and even had free time. The group was also taken on a tour of the Marshall Space Center in Huntsville where the shuttle and its missions are designed.

Schafer was cast as a Mission Specialist 1 and her part in the mock mission consisted of a "walk in space" in the cargo bay section of the shuttle simulator. Even though actual weightlessness is not part of the simulation, Schafer practiced on "the five degrees of freedom," a machine which simulates walking in space, in preparation for the shuttle simulation. She also wore a space suit during the exercise which was a success for her team, the Mercury Team.

Schafer was the only Oklahoman among the 24 youths attending last weekend's space camp session where she was one of seven girls. Her goal is to be a pilot someday which, she added hopefully, could lead to becoming an astronaut.

Schafer said she was not frightened or apprehensive during 2 1/2 days of events, and recommends the camp to everyone.

Little Miss Oklahoma Pre-teen Queen

Terri Lee, 6th grade student at Byng School, has recently won Little Miss Oklahoma Pre-teen Queen, photogenic queen, best sportswear, best model, and a savings bond. Terri will be going to the National pageant this summer where she will compete for Little Miss National Queen and other prizes.

Terri started pageants when she was eight years old. Her first pageant was the Little Miss Tigrette, held here in Ada. Although she didn't place in her first pageant, she won the next one she entered, which was the Little Miss American Beauty in 1983. Terri holds the titles of Little Miss Ardmore 1983, Little Miss Seminole American Beauty 1984, Valentine Princess 1985, Southern Charm Princess 1985, and Life be in it Queen 1986. She has won photogenic queen six times, beauty queen, and talent queen. She won 1st runner-up in last years Little Miss American State Pageant.

Terri has won over 32 awards and been in several more pageants and contests.

Terri is a 4 ft. 11 in. green eyed blonde, who hopes to become a model one day. She sings and dances. She enjoys swimming, skating, and Christian scouts dancing. She is 12 years old and the daughter of Terry and Loretta Lee of Byng. She is a sixth grader in Mrs. Price's classroom.

MATH WORKS

A testing program has been developed by the Mu Alpha Theta math club to emphasize learning of the math fact. The program is designed to aid the students through positive reinforcement and encouragement to gain the basic skills.

Students in the third, fourth and fifth grades are tested weekly in addition, subtraction and multiplication. Students who have scored 100 percent on these tests in their classroom are eligible to take the official "Math Facts" test.

Students are given 10 minutes to complete a test of 300 math facts. A students may take the official test each week as long as it is necessary to achieve 100 percent accuracy. A student is designed a "Math Facts Star" when he achieves 100 percent accuracy in the 10 minute time limit.

In subsequent week he will try for an eight minute time (Math Facts Red Star), a six minute time (Math Facts Silver Star), a five minute time (Math Facts Gold Star), and the ultimate test with a four minute time limit (Math Facts Super Nova).

Students achieving the various levels of excellence will receive certificates of award and their names will be placed on a Math Facts Honor Roll to be displayed in each principal's office.

Fifth Grade

Fifth grade can begin work in band

The instrumental music program at Byng begins in the fifth grade. At the end of the fourth grade year, all of the instruments in the band were demonstrated to the students. In order for the students to know the number of instruments allowed for each section, the director gave them a complete instrumentation list for the concert band. When school began in the fall, director Rozzie Purdy approved their instrument selections.

As the students begin their study, emphasis is given to correct posture, correct hand position and proper mouthpiece placement. Each of the three families of instruments: brass, woodwind and percussion, are discussed in detail. The students work out of two books. "Band Today" and "Technic Today". The band rehearses Monday through Thursday and has a weekly audition in which each student receives a grade and a chair placement in his section. The students are also graded on a weekly practice card; however the quality of practice time is emphasized the same as the quanity of practice time.

The band is preparing for several concerts and a contest in the spring. The contest includes full concert band, solos and ensembles.

Band also teaches fifth grade students responsibility, dependability and self discipline. Students possessing these qualities will not only be good band students but also good students in all of their classes, Miss Purdy says.

Different styles of music are also studied so the student will have a broader knowledge of all kinds of music. Music is the universal language of mankind and should be studied and enjoyed at an early age.

Super Sequoyah

The Sequoyah Award is given each year in Oklahoma to the favorite book selected by the state's children. Any child in grades 3-6 who reads two books from the list of 20 nominees can vote. Winner for '86-87 is Night of the Twister by Ivy Ruckman.

The Super Sequoyah Club is open to all Byng students, grades 3-6, who read all 20 books and make a written evaluation by March 1.

Members receive several special rewards for their efforts. Each is presented a pen and a certificate from the Byng Library Media Center. In April, the entire group of 40 students attend the Sequoyah Awards presentation at the Oklahoma Library Association convention.

This year's convention was held at the University of Oklahoma in the Student Union. Students, sponsoring teachers, and a few parents, met guest speaker, Mrs. Ruckman.

The group had lunch at Longeneckers and made a short visit to Sooner Fashion Mall.

Fifth graders who received the Super Sequoyah certificates were Brad Smith, Christy Archer, Erica Briggs, Christy Lancaster, Niki Watts, Joni Nipps, Jeremy James, Tessa Northcutt, Shauna Farmer, Marlis Osborne, Jamie Wright, Aaran Allen, Kyle Jones, Keith Brock, Danny DeMoss, and LaRay Daniel.

One Dynamic Cowboy

"Although the preceeding contestant missed his calf to get a no time, Travis Cowboy Wilson has followed that ride with a good time of 9 seconds." For those of you who don't know it, that's rodeo slang. Some of you may find rodeos and cowboys less than exciting, but obviously, you haven't seen this cowboy in action.

Presently seventeen years old, Travis Leigh Wilson has been roping for more than half his life. Although he rodeos off and on during the winter, he participates in rodeos every weekend through out the spring and summer. Practice time takes up a large part of his free time, as he practice two hours a day, 5 days a week. To most people, this constant effort would become monotonous, but not to Travis. "I never get tired of it," he states.

The results of his dedication is obvious in the numerous belt buckles, saddles, and assorted tack lying around his trophy room. While participating in the OHSRA, OYRA, and MRCA rodeos, he has taken many titles. In 1983 and again in 1984, he held the ribbon roping championship. In 1985, he was the Calf Roping champion, Reserve All-Around champion, and the Rookie of the Year Calf Roping champion. In 1986, he was named the champion calf roper, ribbon roper, goat tyer, and Reserve All-Around Cowboy champion. Over the past four years, he has accumulated approximately $45,000, but the largest part of the money goes back into that required for entry fees and the gas needed to travel to rodeos all over the state.

Although the benefits of roping are very rewarding, there are also many disadvantages. Since he has a rodeo every weekend, Travis rarely gets the chance to "hangout with the guys" which is a very important part of any teenager's life. Yet Travis replies, "It doesn't bother me a whole lot." Probably a main reason it doesn't is that his family is behind him 100% and do all they can help. His mother Phyllis, is a devoted concession stand worker (and a terrific cook) for all the rodeos, while his father, Harvey, coaches him from atop a fence rail, and his younger brother Heath, (also a participant) cheers from the stands. Another main reason could be his very special friend who devotes her free time to be with him and attend nearly every rodeo.

In conclusion, rodeoing does have its less than desirable aspects such as leaving for a rodeo at 5:30 p.m. and not returning home until 3:00 a.m. However, according to this dynamic cowboy, it's all well worth it. His philosophy of life is one similar to that of most champions, "I enjoy it as long as I win."

World Class
Finalist Has A World Of Class

Leland Wilson, Jr. Many will agree that he is a pretty classy guy. He is well-liked by nearly everyone; he has looks, style, and charm. But another attribute that is not quite so apparent (unless he's wearing his bright blue jacket) is the fact that Leland is also a world class finalist.

Leland began roping in 1984 at the age of 14 with his registered quarter horse, Mr. Diamond Pat. In 1986 he placed in enough shows to qualify for the world finals.

"Horse shows are a lot different from rodeos," Leland commented. "In a show, you have to dress up. You're judged on appearance, the way your horse works, and your roping ability. You team rope with your partner, but in the heelers' division, the judges concentrate only on the heeler's abilities. If you place first, you might get two points; you attend about five shows per year. Whoever has the most points at the end of the year goes to finals. The finals are for the world; other countries are involved. I made it through all three rounds, finishing 11th."

Like most champions, Leland works hard at his skill, practicing nearly every day and often all day long in the summer. When asked how he felt about his current ranking, Leland replied, "I feel like it's an accomplishment. Team roping is a great sport. It's fun and it keeps me from running around so much," he laughed. "I don't know," he said, becoming serious, "I really feel like I've done something for myself - it's an honor."

Such a beautiful child the Lord gave to me. Those flashing brown eyes, full of life and mystery. What will she be when she is full grown? Affairs

One of the most "important" activities of a teenager is to be able to date. What are your feelings when the guy or girl of your dreams if five minutes away from taking you out on the town? Here are some expressions from both sides of the line:

Guys
"Excited."
"Nervous."
"VERY Nervous, jumpy."
"Cool, macho."
"She is lucky."
"Scared of "Dad"."

Girls
"Excited."
"Nervous."
"Happy."
"Awkward, confused."
"Lucky."

So next time the doorbell is calling you and you think you will faint any minute, or the next time you're the one ringing the doorbell and you think the cat will have your tongue, at least you know you're feelings are not at all strange and uncommon.

Music Mania

Mark Balthrop, senior, is interested in Jazz and classical instrumental music. Through the years he has won various awards playing his trumpet at BHS. This is the second year he has been chosen for the state fair band. His accomplishment this year has been writing a melody for the state fair band. He has also arranged brass ensembles for the high school band.

Mark is now a member of the Oklahoma Youth Orchestra. After graduation, he will be going to Australia, New Zealand, and the Fiji Islands on a tour with the Youth Orchestra.

His plans are to go to college and major in music, teach music for two years in a public school, then go back and get a masters degree in music! Eventually he would like to teach at a major university or write and conduct professionally.

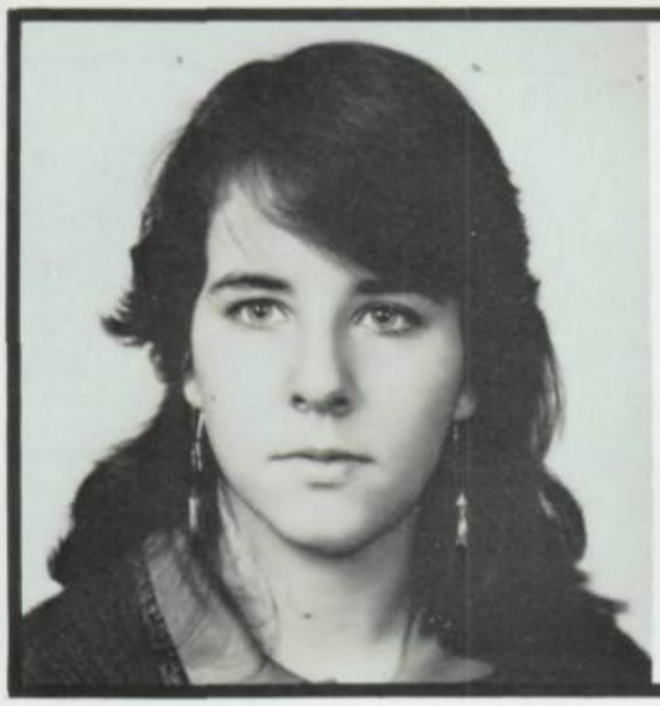
YOU CAN'T DO BETTER THAN Kmart the Saving Place

Terry,
The day you came into our lives was one of great joy. You have grown and blossomed into a lovely young woman. Our hearts are full of love and pride as you approach this new dimension of life. You have worked hard baby and it's paid off. May God's riches and blessings always be your.
Mom and Dad



My name is Maria Candida da Silveira Machado. I'm an exchange student from Sao Paulo, Brazil. I came with Open Door Student Exchange Program. I am 17 years old and my birthday is December 27th.

I am a very happy person and it is easy to make me feel this way. I am very careful and I always worry about what happens to the people around me. I'm studious, talkative, and outgoing. I love nice clothes and perfumes. I like to go shopping and I'll eat almost any kind of food.

I go to a private school. I'm in the 3rd year of High School, and the subjects that I enjoy the most are English, psychology, gym, didaetics and biology.

I like to play piano. I listen to classical or pop music, but I hate rock.

My parents, sisters, and friends haved influenced me a lot. They always help me to solve my problems.

I have decided to follow the teaching career. This decision has influenced my life greatly. It's very important because it is my future. I love children and plan on making a career of teaching them.

LOVE THAT DÄG

One of the most interesting and exciting happenings in the 86/87 school year at Byng is the senior exchange student Dag Svihus from Norway.

When asked what he likes most about America, Dag answered, "Cheap hamburgers, cheap gasoline, the American cars, and the better T.V. programs." When asked about the least like, he replied, "The high crime rate and the amount of drug usage." He says that one of the hardest things to get used to was all the "slang" words we use.

Dag enjoys watching the Benny Hill Show and sports programs. He likes listening to rock music and he enjoys the nature. Dag reads Garfield and Beatle Bailey regularly.

During his stay here in the U.S., Dag hopes to learn English better and to make a lot of new friends. The only major goal he has at the moment is to survive his stay here in the U.S. and sees himself still living here twenty years from now.

A daughter brings sunshine to brighten your days
And she brings worlds of joy through her warm, loving ways —
The sweet things she's done and the nice things she's said
Are memories to cherish throughout years ahead —
A daughter's a blessing that comes from above —
She's a special and beautiful treasure to love.

No words can describe the warm memories, the pride, and the gratitude that come from having a daughter to love and to cherish like you.

Love you Sheila,

"What are you doing out in the arena, bud?" cries the announcer. "Waall," drawls the clown, carrying a cooler with Budweiser written all over it, "I'm gonna have me a party!" "Well, did you know there's something dripping from your cooler?" the announcer inquires, as a yellowish liquid begins leaking out of the cooler. Holding the cooler up above his head, the clown frantically drinks the liquid. When the yellowish liquid stops pouring from the container, the clown opens the cooler to investigate. As he pulls back the lid, a little white toy poodle jumps out. The crowd goes crazy with laughter. Such things earn rodeo clown DeWayne Friar his livelihood.

During the summer of 1986, Dewayne decided the bull-riding (his previous hobby) was making him no money. It was then he made his decision to go to a bullfighting school. DeWayne attended such a school that fall. There he learned the primary rule in bullfighting: "If the cowboys gets hung up, I risk my life for his."

DeWayne claims that this principle makes him nervous, but it doesn't discourage him. "I enjoy what I do. It's exciting!"

Along with is previously mentioned toy poodle, DeWayne also does acts with his mule named Mary (That's my mom's name too, laughs DeWayne.) He keeps the crowd laughing all the time. But it's not all fun and games, there is danger involved too. "You have to get as close to the bull as you can without getting hit." You have to be aggressive in saving your cowboys; a lot of quick thinking is involved. DeWayne had a prime example of this when his pants fell down in the middle of the arena. Plus, he has to think up his own acts. "I have been embarrassed a lot of times," he claims with a grin.

DeWayne plans to make his living at rodeo clowning. He will attend bullfighting school again this spring. He presently spends a lot of time performing at rodeos. In the spring, he will have one almost every weekend. So far, his biggest rodeo was in Ft. Worth where 40,000 people attended. When asked his feelings concerning his job, DeWayne states, "I like embarrassing people and being the center of attention. It's really a lot of fun."

Jeff Cooper, a profoundly deaf student from ECU, helped the drama class learn American Sign Language in order to perform "Children of a Lesser God" in the One-Act Play Festival. Cooper spent several sessions with the students and gave them valuable insights into what it is like to be deaf.

Congratulations Seniors!

Dana,
No matter how grown-up you get you'll always be our little girl. We wish you happiness and joy, as that's what you've always given - HAPPINESS & JOY.

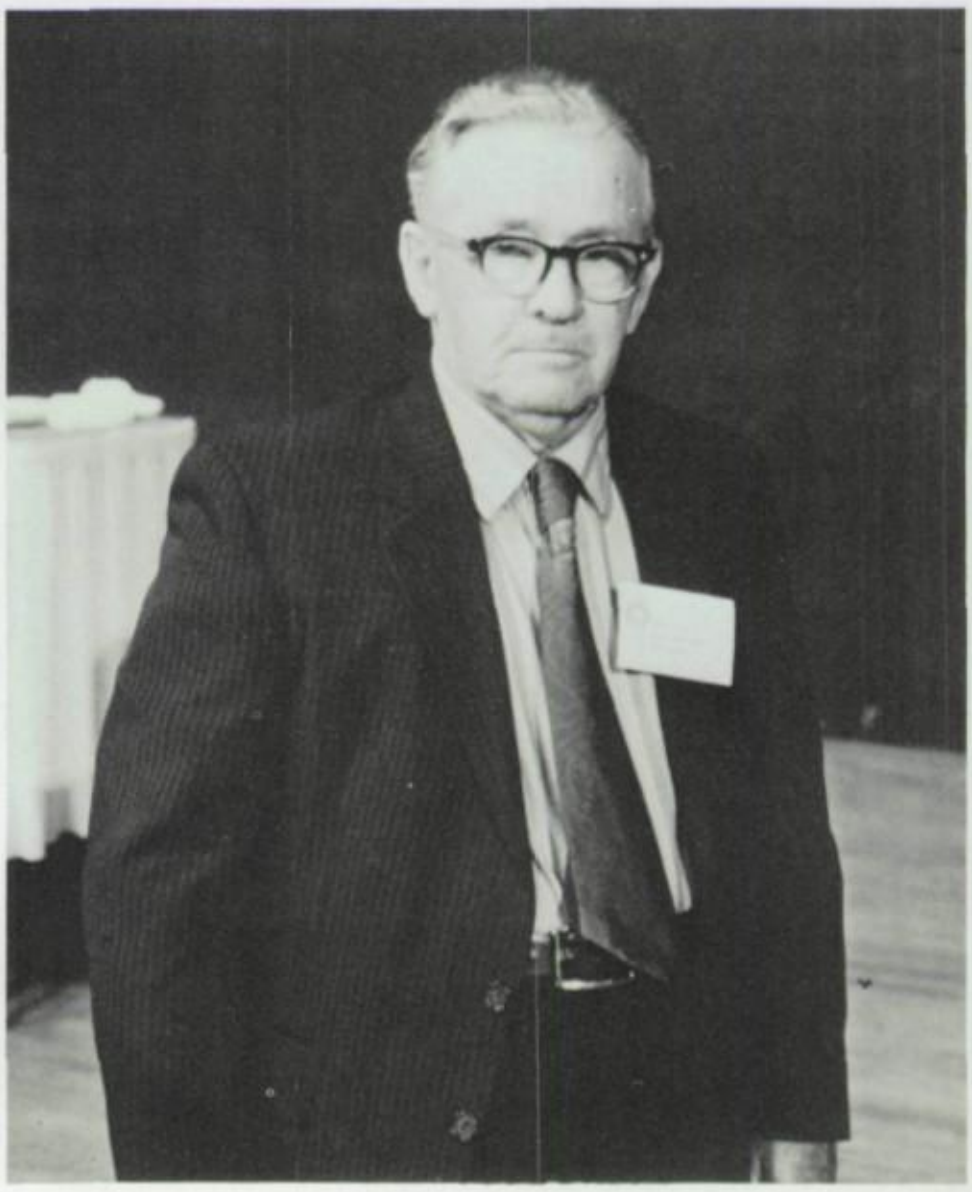
"Teen-agers are my favorite group of people," says Jerry Corvin. Many people make that comment, but Corvin has proved his sincerity by devoting 40 years of service to the Byng Board of Education. During that time, he has driven more than 22,000 miles for regular meetings and he devoted more than 1,000 hours to attendance, says Supt. Marvin Stokes.

Corvin retired in spring of 1987 from the school board and was honored at a reception at the close of school luncheon May 19. The plaque which Mr. Stokes presented was the second honor he had received. Earlier in the year he was honored by the State School Board Association for his record years of services.

The venerable educator was a 1935 graduate of Vanoss High School where as a senior he had his first "board" meeting with Marvin Stokes. Stokes was a young teacher — younger than some of his students — but he already had firm ideas about discipline. He knew then, as now, how to handle rebellious teenagers, and Corvin says Stokes soon impressed his standards for behevior on the senior.

In 1946, after service in World War II, Corvin was elected as a school board member to Egypt School. In 1956, Egypt was annexed to Byng, and three months later Corvin was appointed to fill a vacancy on the Byng school board. He had held that position unopposed, since that time.

The reception gave faculty an opportunity to express gratitude to Mr. Corvin for his years of dedicated leadership and service.



Jerry Corvin

Closing Comments

Preparing to mail the final copy of this year's yearbook forces me to reflect on the past nine months. They have been busy, filled with emotions from hysteria to elation, and they have brought about a personal triumph for all those involved.

I owe a great debt to each of my staff members. They have persevered when others would have quit. I appreciate their long hours of work and attention to detail. Words of appreciation seem a small token for my co-editors, Dana Sayre and Terry Tamashiro. Their devotion, determination and vision of what could be have served as a source of inspiration for all of us.

Someone once told me, "nothing the heart gives away is lost. It lives in the hearts of others." The 1987 Pirate staff gave much, and my heart is full from their gift of dedication.

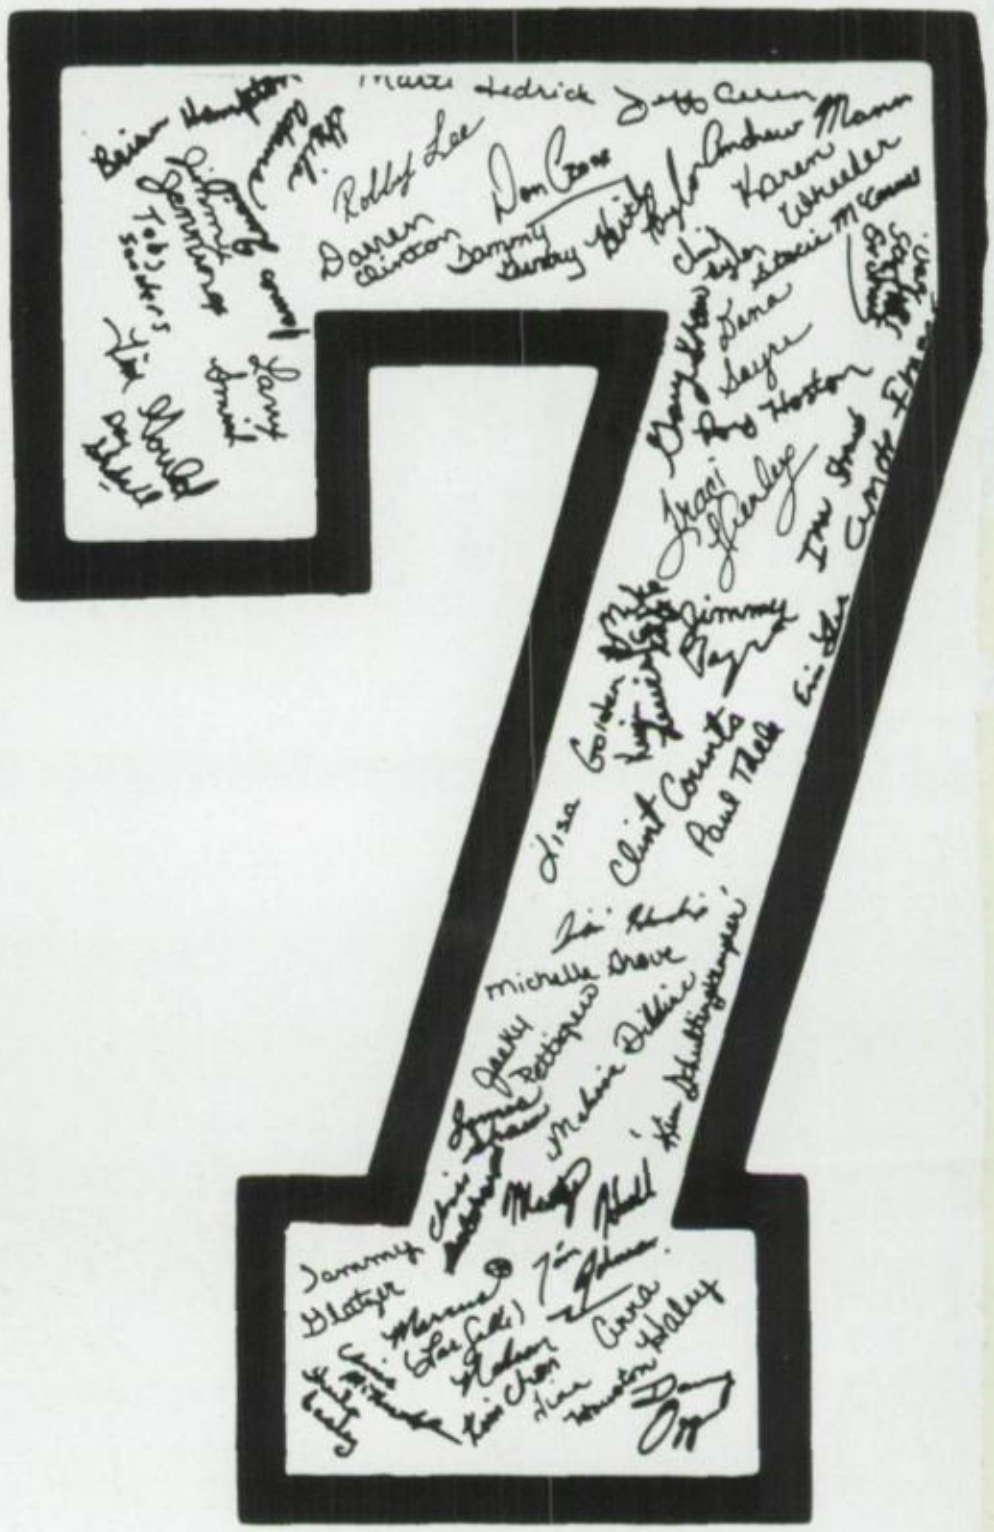
BYNG CLASS OF



All of the events in this yearbook are true. These things actually happened during the school year of 1986-87. The names and places have not been changed to protect the innocent because everything we did, we did JUST FOR THE FUN OF IT!

Thanks
Again
